The Gypsy Warning
Other South-Saying
Red Hair Rules Again
Bombard the Acropolis
By Arthur Brisbane

An English gypsy has predicted the death of Chancellor Hitler before April 1, causing a number of Englishmen to take out speculative insurance policies on Hitler's life with Lloyd's. Berlin authorities have naturally watched closely those that might be interested in making the gypsy prediction come true.

An Associated Press dispatch from Copenhagen says three Americans named Sherman, Mink and Josephson, the last two Jews, and all said to be Communists, have been arrested in connection with alleged plotting against Chancellor Hitler's life.

Looking into the future, "far as human eye can see," some Americans, interested in present conditions and fairly well informed, report that they see numerous, interesting developments that make the gypsy's predictions seem true.

For instance, one able man, holding one of the highest official positions in the United States, although not the top place, says:

"You will see all the states of the union abolished, all ruled by the central government, as forty-eight provinces under governors, appointed by the President."

"There will be only one House of Congress, not two, no Senate necessary, a single chamber of three hundred and thirty members, ruling the forty-eight provinces."

"Instead of national, state, municipal and local courts, there will be only federal courts. That will simplify justice, make it quicker and cheaper, as in England. The kidnapping we have proved that without the help of federal courts, other courts are powerless. We have grown our old pretense of separate independent states."

"That would surprise Thomas Jefferson, who thought he was planning a long way ahead."

Further you are told just when the march on Washington, as an initiation of Mussolini's march on Rome, will take place, about half way through 1937. But you are informed, it will not be a Mussolini program all the way through.

Some gentlemen, expecting to be dictator, will march on Washington, followed by his hordes, gathered in various ways, chiefly by offering to rob anybody that has any money and divide it.

The leader of the march on Washington, to his surprise, will be routed by some alert, energetic, young military person, and that military person will be the dictator, not the man that organized the marching.

The National Ladies' Hairdressers' Exhibition, gathered in Toronto, is informed that platinum blonde are on the wane and red-haired women, poetically called "ultra," are rising in favor.

The platinum blonde is a modern innovation, a passing thing, whereas the woman with red hair antedates all the governments and civilization that we know, and may outlast them.

When your distant grand-mother of 500,000 years ago dashed into the icy pool to escape a maddened, wounded animal, that creature beheld a lady, not only with red hair on her head, but with red hair all the way down to her feet.

Red hair is the very OLD original hair. The redheaded show strength, in that they have resisted the process of time, clinging to the hair they were before the ice age.

In Greece the navy, in rebellion, threatens to shill the city of Athens and "show the government into the air."

No war is as bad as a civil war, but it can be so bad that a Greek would wish to believe that a man calling himself a Greek would be a traitor to his country.

There is not much of it left, and there is a pity to sacrifice it for the sake of a passing political quarrel.

New Yorkers are told that all workers pay in taxes in various ways the earnings of one day every week. The man who has $5000 a year pays $1000 toward the support of government.

Some men with bigger incomes busy just now borrowing money with what they pay taxes, could sell a more interesting story.

With Lent beginning, churches are filled. Services on Ash Wednesday were especially crowded, 14,000 persons visiting St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York during the day. Many in honor of the Lenten season luxuriate and pleasures that ordinarily seem necessary.

Many millions for five or six years past have been giving up many things that they also

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY AND ITS FORGOTTEN PLEDGES

"The Democratic Party solemnly promises:

1. An immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government.
2. Maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced."

From the Democratic national platform, 1932.

"The platform is a promise BINDING ON THE PARTY AND ITS CANDIDATES."

"I have accepted the platform WITHOUT EQUIVOCATION and WITHOUT RESERVE."

"Let us have the courage TO STOP BORROWING to meet continuing deficits. STOP THE DEFICITS."

From the campaign speeches of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

CURLEY Signs BILL

NAME TO SPEED 3 TO PRISON

Governor Curley this afternoon signed the bill which permits transfer of the Miller brothers and Abe Faber to state prison.

The "Miller-Faber" bill, under which convicted murderers may be transferred from county jails to state prison immediately upon being sentenced, was passed today by House and Senate.

The bill went to Governor Curley by his signature.

Under its terms Sheriff Capen of Norfolk county is empowered to ask Commissioner of Correction Loman to move the Miller brothers and Abe Faber to state prison immediately.

Loman would be empowered to move them.

Under previous law, murderers condemned to the electric chair cannot be transferred to prison until 10 days before execution.

The Millers and Faber are under sentence to die the week of April 28 for slaying a policeman with a machine gun during the holdup of the Needham Trust Company.

The bill was designed to permit their speedy transfer to state prison to prevent attempts to escape.

GIRL DIES Of Basketball INJURIES

Jean Barker, 17, died today in Merville Hospital as a result of injuries believed to have been suffered in the basketball game between Jackson College and Pembroke yesterday.

The Jackson sophomore, whose socially prominent parents reside at 3361 Osgood street, North Attleboro, collapsed in the shower room after helping Jackson to a 30-26 victory.

Medical Examiner John P. Pearson gave as probable cause of her death "cerebral hemorrhage." Officials of both Jackson and Pembroke refused to comment.

Miss Barker entered Jackson at the age of 15. She roomed in Matten's hall. She was one of the outstanding girls in her class, being a member of the variety hockey and basketball squads, an honor student, and secretary of the All-Around Club.

WOMAN KILLED Crushed by Lift

Mrs. Isabelle Powers, 52, of Telegraph street, South Boston, was crushed to death today on a member of the variety hockey and basketball squads, an honor student, and secretary of the All-Around Club.

She was killed by a building in newspaper row.

ALYCE Has Solid FOOD TRANSFUSION IS AVERTED

Picture on Page 2
By PEGGY DOYLE
Fall River, March 8—Alyce Jane McHenry had her first solid food in months today.

She asked for macaroni and cheese and was given it. She ate a generous serving and after she had retained it in her one-time upside-down stomach the doctors smiled.

It was a sign that a blood transfusion would not be necessary and that Alyce, the 10-year-old girl who traveled all the way from Omaha to face cheerfully an operation which might have meant her death, is on the way to full health.

The macaroni and cheese was the first sturdy food Alyce has been able to eat for as long as she can remember.

All her diet had been liquid previous to her operation, but from now on, according to the gratified doctors, she will be fed solids in increasing amounts.

The 8 a. m. bulletin, which accompanied the news of the macaroni and cheese, and which was signed by Dr. George C. King and Leonard W. Hill, said: "Temperature 100, pulse 100, respiration 20; fairly restful night; progress continues."

Today it was thought that Alyce might be allowed to read some of the many letters pouring in to her.

Mrs. Luella McHenry, mother of Alyce, said that her daughter was such a flood of "fan mail" that she had practically given up the task of acknowledging it all.

Alyce's mother revealed that in the mail came a note from a World War veteran and medals blessed by clergymen from all denominations.

"I will remember you always in my prayers and in my masses," a letter from one priest said.

A sergeant in the Ottawa police department sent congratulations from his mate and in the letter declared:

"The entire department wishes you the speedy recovery and the entire corps is pulling for you."

Thanks to the will of Mrs. Jessie A. Goddard, who died in her Newton home on March 3, 20-year-old Marion Wilson will return to Simmons College to complete her education. Her father was chauffeur for Mrs. Goddard and shares in her estate, as do Marion and her brother, Douglas. Trust funds were established for their education.

Quincy Wife Shot Dead
Found by Husband Lying Across Bed

Shed through the heart, Mrs. Alice Mather, 32, was found today in her home in Theresa road, Quincy, by her husband, John, when he arrived home for lunch.

She died in an ambulance on the way to Quincy Hospital.

Her husband is an executive of the Edison station of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company in North Weymouth.

He told police that when he returned home for lunch he found his wife absent from the first floor.

Going upstairs, he found her lying across the bed, with a revolver in the floor by her head.

According to police, Mather said his wife had been despondent for some time.

The couple came from Pennsylvania two years ago; the husband said, and had been married 29 years.

FREED By Court in TRAIN DEATH

On a divided verdict today Clifford C. Spokofsky, 25, of Westwood, was found not guilty of the murder of his wife, Marie.

The verdict was directed by Judge Finnell of the District Attorney Edmund R. DeWelling, an unusual procedure.

The state had closed its case and the defense was about to begin when the district attorney made his motion.

Spokofsky was on trial in Dedham Superior Court. His wife's body was found September on the cowcatcher of the Boston-Washington train, the Senator, and the state had charged that he killed her and threw her off Green Lodge bridge, Westwood.

The suddenness of the verdict was a complete surprise to him. He stood speechless for several minutes. His mother broke down and cried, then embraced him.

Mexico City, March 8—Catholic officials expressed the belief today that Archbishop Pascual Diaz, who disappeared with three friends yesterday, had been kidnaped by radical elements and that his safety is endangered.

The churchmen apparently were intercepted upon their return from the town of Vistacion, where they attended religious observances.

As the hours passed and no word came from the archbishop, fears of his fellow churchmen mounted.

VENIZELOS Greek Rebel CHIEF HURT

Athens, March 8—Former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, rebel chieftain, was reported wounded today.

Athens, March 8—Loyal troops launched an offensive from the north at rebels in Macedonia today shortly after the Greek government interpreted messages it said indicated the insurgents were about ready to surrender.

General Kiliassas, commanding the division in the north, sent his troops plunging down across snow-covered fields in the wake of bombing planes that roared across the rebel positions to harass them with aerial bombs and machine gun fire.

The intercepted message, which government claimed was sent by Venizelos, said:

HOLMES in Soldier's GRAVE

NOTABLES BARE HEADS IN SLEET

By International News Service

Washington, March 8.—Escorted by the President Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was buried this afternoon in Arlington to sleep not far from the resting place of another President and jurist, William Howard Taft.

The greatest liberal of them all found, in the end, a soldier's grave. It was as he wished it. It was his wish, too, that he rest finally beside the body of his wife, with whom he used to say he had had a 47-year honeymoon before she preceded him in death a few years ago. That, too, was fulfilled. Today was his 84th birthday.

Appropriately enough, he went to his grave to the stirring strains of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic"—the republic which he fought to save, and upon whose jurisprudence he left an indelible stamp in half a century on the bench.

Mr. Roosevelt, Vice-President Garner, Chief Justice Hughes, his "brethren" of the Supreme Court, as he always called them, cabinet officers, and a distinguished host of dignitaries, stood silent and uncovered in the drifting rain of a dark day as the flag-covered casket slipped into the soil.

Simple Rites

The services, as Justice Holmes also had wished, were simple. Shortly before noon the casket was removed from the old red-brick house in I street, where it had rested since Wednesday, to All Souls' Unitarian Church. Every All Souls' service was held in the house was taken. Up front sat Edward Holmes, a nephew and the closest relative, and Mrs. Roosevelt. Mr. Hughes and the eight associate justices sat in the rear reserved for the honorary pallbearers. Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, the pastor, read Joseph Blanco White's poem, "Mysterious Night," a Holmes favorite, and the jurist's own quotations. No eulogy was delivered. The Unitarian funeral service was read and the organist played a selection from "The New World Symphony."

Passers-by stopped and watched the procession proceed to Arlington. Soldiers from Fort Myer were waiting at the gates and took charge of the burial rites. As the coffin was removed from the hearse to a gun caisson the band played patriotic airs from the "American Medley Grand March." Then the nine justices started their march beside the caisson to the grave.

Curley There

Strains of martial music again rent the chill air as the caisson and lowered in the grave. Dr. Pierce offered a brief prayer and the benediction. Eight riflemen stepped forward and fired three volleys in the air. This was followed by the sounding of taps by a bugler—the army's farewell salute to a soldier. Among those who attended the services were Governor James M. Curley and Chief Justice Arthur P. Tugge of Massachusetts—Holmes' native state, John G. Palfrey and Arthur D. Hill, representing the Boston Bar Association, and Representative Platt Andrews, representing the mayor and council of Beverly, Mass., where Holmes spent his summers on his estate.

JAPAN VOTES

Huge Arms Fund

Tokio, March 8 (AP).—The House of Peers enacted the 1935-36 budget today, finally approving demands of army and navy leaders for the largest military appropriations in history.

An uncounted standing vote rejected the Peers as overwhelming by in favor of the bill, which allocates 47 per cent of the appropriations (about $280,000,000) to the army and navy. The House approved the measure February 24.

His plans approved by the State Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, James P. McGarry of South Boston has launched an active campaign to organize an All-Navy post of veterans in Greater Boston. Many of the largest and most active posts in the country are made up entirely of navy men and the idea of a similar organization here has been prevalent for a long time, McGarry said today.

Statler Heiress Gives $1000 Just for Tune

New York, March 8.—Low Conrad, former dance band leader at the Hotel Statler, Boston, and friend of Mrs. Elva Statler Davidson, mystery death victim, said today that she was exceptionally emotional and "often would burst into tears."

Beyond that, Conrad, now victim in Lou Reisman's band at Central Park Casino, could give no help toward solution of her death, centering in Mrs. Elva Statler, N. C., said was due to carbon monoxide poisoning, "circumstances unknown."

She was devoted to his playing, Gould said, and at one time gave him a $1000 wrist watch.

That was before her marriage to H. Bradley Davidson, Jr., who left the bulk of her fortune in a will made last month in Boston.

The gift of the watch, Conrad declared, was in appreciation for his playing numbers she requested while he was in Boston's speakeasy.

"She sang which always made her cry," said Conrad, "was 'What Is This Thing Called Love?' It was my theme song and now is the theme song of the Reisman band."

Harvard Man Goes

"She was exceptionally emotional. She often asked me to play special numbers, and when I played them she would burst into tears."

All one time, I believe, she was in love with a Harvard student, he told her he was in his home in England.

The watch she gave me was simply a token of esteem. I was simply courteous to the daughter of my boss."

Conrad said that at the time he received the watch from the Statler heiress he was happily married. Sometime, at her insistence and when his daughter as a band leader would permit, he joined her party, he said.

Miss Statler was a Radcliffe student during most of the time he led the Boston dance band in the Statler, Conrad explained.

Although the inquest into Mrs. Davidson's death in the Pinehurst garage ended yesterday, definite finding of responsibility, Solicitor Rowland Pruetie indicated that his investigation might be continued.

GOULD Suit Given TO JURY

WIFE'S LAWYER FLAYS PRINCE

By International News Service

New York, March 8.—Portraying the willowy Wilma Gould as the innocent victim of phony noblemen and private detectives, Henry A. Uterhart, her counsel, today asked a supreme court jury to give her the half-million dollar bail she asks as the victim of an alleged conspiracy to "frame" her for a divorce.

The case was given to the jury at 1:15 p. m.

Summing up for his client, who is suing her husband, Edward Gould, wealthy Seneca Falls, N. Y., pump manufacturer, his brother Norman, one of their attorneys and the Louis Investigative Company, Uterhart described it as "the dirtiest case I have ever tried."

"And all the dirt was brought in by the defendants," he added.

Uterhart's statement was in answer to witnesses who swore Wilma had been an inmate of a Chicago resort.

For "Prince Mike" who was not summoned to the stand to defend the name of the Romanoffs and the Gergsones, Uterhart had only scorn—but a lot of that.

"As you said, 'would he be impressed by a prince—if he were a prince?'"

"Mrs. Gould was. But there were never any amorous adventures between them."

"The apartment in which the defendants claim they met Mrs. Gould in a compromising situation was rented by him and he paid $50 advance rent."

"He never used it before or after the raid. If that doesn't show conspiracy, what does?"

STATLER Case Left TO JURY

MYSTERY YET UNSOLVED

By Associated Press

Pinehurst, N. C., March 8.—After an eight-day investigation, the strange death of Mrs. Elva Statler Davidson, young heiress, remained as baffling today as it was when her body was found sprawled on the floor of her automobile in the family garage.

As the result of an "open verdict" returned by the coroner's jury yesterday, the investigation was right back where it started.

The jury reported merely that Mrs. Davidson died of carbon monoxide poisoning "under circumstances unknown to the jury."

The coroner's jury, with its verdict, put the case back in the hands of Solicitor Rowland S. Pruetie, who before the formal inquest started, said he was convinced Mrs. Davidson was murdered.

"So far as I am concerned," Pruetie said, "any further action in the case will be up to the grand jury."

Physicians said the heiress' death was caused by carbon monoxide—the deadly fumes from an automobile exhaust.

The body was found on February 27, a few hours after Mrs. Davidson and her husband, H. Bradley Davidson, had returned, with their house guests from a party at 4:30 a. m.

The last witness at the inquest, Robert D. Vail of Glen Cove, N. Y., said he heard Mrs. Davidson say about two weeks before her death, "I feel like going into the garage and turning on the motor."

NRA NOW Slowing TRADE

RICHBERG ASKS NEW LAW

By Associated Press
Washington, March 8.—A warning that delays and uncertainties over NRA legislation were slowing up trade and industry was given the Senate finance committee today by Donald Richberg, director of the National Emergency Council.

His statement was made in an overflowing committee room as he answered questions in a searching cross-examination by the committee's entire membership. Talking in an easy voice and gesturing, he put squarely on Congress the job of cutting down the vast code structure along administrative recommendations of holding future codification to industries engaged in or affecting interstate commerce.

This was his reply to the committee's request for a list of codes to be dropped.

Codes Suspended

But first Richberg listed eight codes affecting 1,875,000 employees which already have been partially or entirely suspended. The recovery coordinator said codes for barber shops and laundries with their 450,000 workers were not in operation today. Then he named seven other service industries which he said had been suspended except as to minimum wages, maximum hours and health's collective bargaining guarantees.

Richberg testified there had been serious legal question as to the extent the government could go in code rule. "Our recommendation," he said, "would be that you should ascertain how far it is desirable and practicable to regulate conditions."

Hits Courts

Richberg said court decisions depend to some extent upon public opinion.

Some court decisions, Richberg said, apparently referring to some recent decisions on the Recovery Act, "are made in complete disregard of the effect."

Citing codes that might be dropped, Richberg said the codes for barber shops and laundries, affecting 453,000 employees, had been administratively suspended and were not in operation today.

With Senators Hastings (R-Del.), King (D-Ill.) and Costigan (D-Colo.) doing much of the questioning, Richberg warned complete abandonment of codes would bring "a relapse into more vicious competition."

But he said it had been unfair to maintain codes when they could not be enforced.

Sweeps Winners Hold Riches

By International News Service
New York, March 8.—Six of seven winners of huge sweepstakes prizes in recent years have managed to retain their riches and four of them didn't even bother to quit work. Lamorne A. Jones reveals in an article in the April Cosmopolitan.

William Meringer, winner of $153,000, took his family to Ireland, stayed there long enough to give a dinner for 700 needy Dublin children.

On his return he purchased a home. He assured his children an education by creating an annuity fund for them, banked the rest and now works two days a week in a restaurant.

Peter Dolan, Irish dock builder, didn't even quit his job after he won $500,000 in a lottery last October. He hasn't missed a day since and still occupies his old walk-up apartment house.

Facts in the Millen-Faber Case not told before will be revealed by Gen. Needham exclusively in the next Sunday Advertiser

STRIKE SPREADS In Havana

HAVANA, March 8.—The strike against the government of President Carlos Menéndez spread today to employees of most of Havana's transportation facilities after a night of continual bomb explosions.

Street railway employees left their jobs, all but paralyzing transportation and railroad and bus men voted to join the anti-government movement.

Bomb blasts damaged the Havana courthouse, police station, and several other buildings.

LIVELY Race Row LOOMS

HEARINGS OPEN MONDAY

The hearing on horse and dog racing in the State House Monday will be packed with action, according to indications today.

Attorney Conrad W. Crocker requested Leverett Saltonstall, Speaker of the House, to prevent Representative Martin Hayes from sitting as a member of the Rules Committee at the hearing.

Crocker is representing William H. Gardner of Melrose, a petitioner to amend the bill.

In a letter to the speaker, today, he asserted that Hayes was ineligible because he is the attorney for the Greyhound Association, which has been granted a license in Cambridge.

The Eastern Horse Racing Association today sought an opinion from the United States War Department that would definitely establish its rights in East Boston in regard to the Salt Creek Channel, which is an outlet of the waterway now running through part of the proposed Suffolk Downs track.

O'Hara Due Monday

It was learned that Walter O'Hara, president of the Narragansett track and one of the dour figures in the affair, plans to leave Miami in time to be here Monday, and it is considered almost a certainty that he will attend the hearing.

Governor Curley has advanced the opinion that no one would be justified in investing a dollar in dog tracks pending appeals to the Supreme Court by promoters of a Cambridge track, who have been refused a building permit.

In Dighton the Bristol County Kennel Club was putting civil engineers and surveyors to work drawing plans for a proposed dog track there, but they announced that no actual construction would be started until the muddle was cleared up.

O'Hara is definitely "out" at Suffolk Downs, and definitely "in" on a horse track to be located in Natick.

Despite the opposition of O'Hara to the East Boston track, it is said that the governor favors it, since both the East Boston traffic tunnel and Boston Elevated would benefit.

Attorney Crocker, a thorn in the side of the racing people since the commission was appointed, said in part in his letter to Speaker Saltonstall:

"House Rule 34 provides that no member shall serve on any committee in any question where the private right is immediately concerned, distinct from the public interest."

"I find it to be a fact that Representative Martin Hayes of Boston, a member of your committee on rules, is the attorney of record for the Greyhound Association that has been granted a license to operate a pari-mutuel system dog-racing plant in Cambridge, which license was issued by the racing commission without any public hearing."

"The legislation sought by my client, the admission of which is to be passed upon by your committee on rules on Monday, would give the city of Cambridge a public hearing as of right upon the revocation of the license now held by Mr. Hayes' clients."

"It would specifically give rights of appeal to persons aggrieved by the commission's rulings in the premises and make all acts of the commission with respect to this license definite, subject in the matter of location to the approval of the local authority."

KING NO CAUSE To Avoid Her

A young wife, fighting for possession of her 4-year-old daughter, told Judge Harry R. Dow in Salem probate court she could "see no reason why all the world should stare at her because she wears a wedding ring."

Mrs. Effie E. McLaughlin of Chatham street, Lynn admitted going to dances and shows with a man and "even to his house," but only after she and her husband, Edward J. McLaughlin separated.

McLaughlin is seeking both a divorce and the legal custody of the child. Judge Dow reserved decision.

Light Snow Brings Death, Injuries With Skidding

Skidding accidents in the wake of light snow took the life of one man, injured several persons and smashed up a number of automobiles early today.

Joseph Callahan, 33, of Bayfield road, Atlantic, was killed when the machine he was driving skidded at the rotary traffic in Edward Everett square, Dorchester, and struck a post.

William Greene, taxi driver, passing shortly after the accident, freed Callahan from the wreckage and brought him to City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Four women were hurt, one seriously, in a skidding crash near Governor Curley's home.

Miss Dorothy Dalton, 23, of Huntington avenue, Back Bay, was taken to City Hospital where she was held for treatment. She sustained a possible fracture of the skull, a fractured jaw and deep cuts about the face.

Miss Hazel Trotter, 25, the operator of the car, and Mrs. Clara Brewster, 46, both of Sewall avenue, were in the machine, sustained lacerations of the face and legs.

Mrs. Anna B. Tucker, 56, of Albany street, Boston, the other passenger, sustained painful bruises and contusions. An English boy hurt.

Reaham dog, which was in the car, was unhurt.

In a collision between an automobile and a Metropolitan bus on Lee street near Warren street, Brookline, Frank Lehan, Jr., a passenger with his father on the bus, sustained painful injuries to his head.

The child was taken to Children's Hospital, Brookline, by a passing automobile, treated, and released. Lehan lives on Bonded road, Brookline.

The operator of the car who police said was Robert Gleason of Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay, and the bus driver, Victor Johnson of Beach street, Belmont, were unhurt.

Both machines were extensively damaged.

Mrs. Aaron Polenberg of Parker avenue, Newton Center, driving an automobile police said belonged to Jacob Harris of the same address, skidded into a tree on Boylston street, Brookline, and demolished the machine. She was only slightly hurt.

Aged Sisters Starve

Two Spinsters Found Near Death

New York, March 8.—Dressed in the flowing silk finery they wore as social queens of the once aristocratic Vassar Park section of Brooklyn, two elderly spinsters were found near death from starvation.

One was the butler and the footman and the stocks of choice values from the old-fashion home investigators entered and found the sisters, the Misses Ella and Anna Knowles, 77 and 79, unconscious.

Two withered orange peels were the only trace of food in the house. Miss Emma lay on the kitchen floor and her sister, paralyzed, was found in an upstairs bed.

Neighbors said that while it was generally known that the sisters were in straitened circumstances, all offers of food or other assistance had been politely but firmly rejected.

WAR BREAKS OVER HATHAWAY SEAT

Political warfare was brewing on Beacon Hill today

On one side a united Democracy of 116 members of the House were rallying to the leadership of Governor Curley, while the opposition was calling upon 123 Republican members to present a solid front.

The issue is the unseating of Representative J. Dolan Hathaway, Fall River Democrat, which is scheduled for next Monday unless Governor Curley and members of his party in the House can prevent it.

The committee on election today formally reported that there were irregularities in the election of Hathaway with which he personally had no connection but which they believed were sufficient to unseat him and to declare Cyrus C. Houseville, a Republican, his successor. The matter was put over until Monday.

Charles H. McChes, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, counsel for Hathaway during the fight against the Republican move, appealed to Governor Curley to intervene in the interests of fair play.

The governor, at McChes' request, gave the matter his attention today and conferred at length with Senator William C. Conroy, Fall River Democrat leader, and with Representative Edward J. Kelly of Worcester, Democratic floor leader of the House.

Following the conference the two men went to their respective branches of the Legislature to confer with Democratic associates.

THE Metropolitan Life Insurance Company began publishing "Health Hints" for its policyholders in 1871 and ever since has carried on its efforts toward better health.

The Company cooperated with government officials in a campaign against a threatened cholera epidemic in 1892 and thus began its co-operative work with public health organizations.

In further developing its activities in the field of health, the Metropolitan organized its Welfare Division in 1909 and, at about the same time, a nation-wide nursing service was established for Industrial policyholders.

REPEAL of 'Pink Slips' PUSHED

BOTH HOUSES FAVOR ACTION

By Universal Service
Washington, March 8.—Overwhelming sentiment for repeal of the "pink slip" clause in the income tax law was registered by both Houses of Congress.

Smashing at criminals and snipers who would have easy access to the private affairs of individuals under this provision, the House ways and means committee approved the repeal resolution offered by Chairman Doughton.

A Universal Service poll of the Senate disclosed 32 senators for repeal with but 19 against. There were 20 classed as non-committal and 14 absentees.

Indicating its support of the repeal, the House rules committee voted a rule limiting debate on the resolution to one hour. One hour was allowed for debate of the rule itself. Chairman O'Connor said the resolution would be called up Monday.

Speed Needed

Both Democratic and Republican House leaders pledged large majorities of their forces for repeal when the vote is taken. Senate action will await the House. The House ways and means committee played the publicity requirement as "absolutely unnecessary" saying: "The real remedy for prevention of tax avoidance is careful auditing of returns and the swift imposition of penalties for such evasion."

Congressional decision on the "pink slip" must be registered before March 15, the date for filing tax returns. If it is to prevent knowledge of private persons' affairs from falling into the hands of kidnappers, racketeers, swindlers and high pressure salesmen, repeal is called.

BANK INTEREST Bill Defeat Seen

Forewarned by the bankers themselves when they reduced the interest rates on mortgages from 6 to 5½ per cent, it is expected that the legislative committee on banks and banking will not approve a bill making an even lower rate and a moratorium on mortgage foreclosures.

BAGPIPERS

Lose Kilts

Detroit, March 8.—Andrew's bagpipers, Detroit's finest band of the doleful bagpiper, are without kilts.

Clubs officers seized the kilts at the Windsor (Ont.) hotel claiming Alex Adams, the band's business representative and chauffeur for Robert Ford, had neglected to declare them.

Hunt Runaway, 7

Auburn, Me., March 8.—Police were searching again today for Leo St. Hilaire, seven-year-old youngest of eight children, who disappeared Wednesday morning. Police said he had run away several times during the past few months.

LEGION Teachers Aid "OATH"

BILL PUSHED BY NEW POST

The new Boston school teachers post of the American Legion, today endorsed the bill requiring all teachers in the Commonwealth to swear to uphold state and federal governments.

Dr. Frederick J. Gillis, commander of the Joyce Kilmer Post No. 316, said in endorsing the bill:

"The Joyce Kilmer Post unanimously and enthusiastically endorses the bill requiring the oath for teachers in schools, and colleges in Massachusetts."

"The Joyce Kilmer Post supports the program of the American Legion as stated at the National convention in Florida, for well-trained patriotic teachers for our children."

"The oath is in no way a reflection on teachers now in service. It is a preventive measure to forestall the undermining of our American principles of government. The citizen taxpayer has a right to demand that the salaries paid from public funds, shall be used to employ only teachers loyal to our existing form of government. 'Academic freedom in the classroom must not become unpatriotic.'"

Senators Laud Hearst Campaign Against Reds

By Universal Service
Washington, March 8.—School teachers who inculcate Communist and other subversive doctrines into the minds of their pupils were denounced as enemies of America in the Senate.

Senators Copeland (D.) of New York and King (D.) of Utah, vigorously assailing efforts to undermine the youth of the country, praised the campaign of the Hearst newspapers against Red propaganda in the schools.

During debate on the War Department appropriation bill, Senator King declared:

"The campaign which has been waged by William Randolph Hearst in his chain of newspapers against indoctrination of our schools with the policies and ideology of Bolshevism government deserves the commendation instead of the condemnation which has come from many Bolshevik school teachers throughout the United States."

Senator Copeland said:

"I do not care who carries on such a campaign. I commend it. We should be alive to the importance of pointing out to our youth exactly what good citizenship means. I am very sorry to say that there is no question of the efforts being made to indoctrinate the youth of our land with the idea that a different idea of government should prevail in America."

LUNDEEN BILL

Dorchester Man's Rescue Tale Wins $100 Floyd Gibbons Prize

NOTED WRITER PICKS DOG STORY

Talk about cashing in on one's experiences.

Fred H. Wetherald of 39 Eldon street, Dorchester, today was declared winner of Floyd Gibbons' monthly prize of $100.

The check looked good to Fred—what with very little work in sight and an income for the entire last year of only $800.

But that is aside from the award. Floyd Gibbons, than whom there is no greater thrill hunter, decided that Fred's story of rescue from icy waters by his shaggy dog proved the best thrill of the month.

Fred's story appeared in the Boston Evening American February 27. It related in thrilling detail the plight of his shaggy dog in the icy waters of Monticau.

TILT Marks Hearing ON ROW CLUB

A lively tilt between Deputy Superintendent James F. McDewitt and Attorney John Drew marked today a police complaint against the Row Club, Washington street, before the Boston licensing board.

The trouble started when Secretary Louis Epple asked that all witnesses in the case be sworn.

As Sergeant James Crowley and Joseph Hart rose to be sworn, Drew asked that several other officers present for another case, be sworn.

McDewitt objected and their verbal tilt started, only to be interrupted by Chairman David Montague.

Sergeant Crowley said he found 54 persons, including 30 women, and evidence of liquor spilled on the floor. Hart corroborated his story.

At the close of the hearing Drew asked Deputy McDewitt the exact nature of the violation. McDewitt replied he was not complaining of violations but of conditions.

The case was taken under advisement.

Boy Killed Father At "Mother's Urging"

By International News Service

Buffalo, N. Y., March 8.—His mother pictured as a female Svengali, 11-year-old Richard Kloes has confessed she so poisoned his mind he shot and killed his father, District Attorney Walter C. Newcomb charged today as he sought an indictment charging first degree murder against the mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Kloes, 35.

Newcomb said the boy, a sixth grade pupil, declared his mother bought him a shotgun and harped at him until he shot his father in the back of the head Monday night.

Mrs. Kloes was at a moving picture show at the time.

Richard said, according to Newcomb, that his mother kept telling him the father, John Kloes, was mean to her. She played on the fact that his father had refused him permission to ride his bicycle until spring.

The boy's first words after the weird murder were: "Now I can ride my bicycle."

Portions of several notes found in the Kloes home were the first clues in point to the wife, according to Newcomb.

He said when they were placed together they were found to be in her handwriting, addressed to Richard.

One, Newcomb said, read: "Stay behind him. Don't let him see you shoot."

Mrs. Kloes, who collapsed when she was first told of the murder, was still in the city hospital, too ill to be questioned.

WE ASKED OUTDOOR PEOPLE:

"Is this fact
important to You?"

"Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos... Turkish and
Domestic... than any other popular brand."

WINSTON-SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA

FLAVOR! "It's been thrilling to have a part in the vast enterprise of building Boulder Dam," says Erwin Jones, Boulder Dam engineer. "Plenty of strain. Many long hours of exhausting work—that's the lot of an engineer on this job! Most of us here are Boulder smoke-Camels. Man, what a swell taste Camels have! Mild, cool, and mellow! Camels have a flavor that can't be beat. You can tell they are made from choice tobacco, too, because they don't get flat or tiresome in taste when you smoke a lot."

HEALTHY NERVES!

"I've smoked Camels for fourteen years, without a sign of upset nerves," says Bill Horn, former Gold Cup winner and recently named an outstanding figure in American motorboat racing for 1934. "I like Camels and they like me!"

ENERGY!

"As a master builder, I have learned that any work that requires 'push' and 'pep' just naturally calls for Camels," comments Frazier Forman Peters. "I smoke them all the time. Camels always give me new energy and enthusiasm when I'm feeling tired and listless."

MILDNESS!

"Every woman prefers a milder cigarette," says Miss Helene Bradshaw, an enthusiastic horsewoman. "I smoke Camels because they are the only cigarette I've ever found that is mild and pleasing to your throat, and that has at the same time a delightful rich, full flavor."

VALUE!

"I've visited Winston-Salem—seen with my own eyes how Camels are manufactured," says Charles Belden, who runs the big Pitchfork ranch in Wyoming. "They are made from costlier tobaccos. No wonder Camels have such a rich, cool flavor—such mildness!"

Bryn Mawr Alumnae Plans Fund Benefit

By BETTY ALDEN

MRS. HENRY FULLER of Cambridge is heading a committee of Bryn Mawr Alumnae who are sponsoring the opening night performance of the Humphrey-Weidman dance group at the Repertory Theatre next Thursday, March 14. The proceeds will be donated to the Bryn Mawr 50th anniversary fund for the erection of a new science building.

Mrs. Robert Walcott, Mrs. Talbot Andrus, Mrs. Arthur Brooks, Mrs. Edward A. Weeks, Mrs. Joseph Aub, Miss Elizabeth Jackson, Mrs. Theodore Morrison and Miss Mary C. Parker are assisting Mrs. Fuller.

From all we hear, the concert will be given before a very distinguished audience. The patronesses include Mrs. Charles Peabody, Mrs. Algernon Coolidge, Miss Alice Tapley, Miss Katherine Loring, Mrs. Henry Endicott, Mrs. Herbert Carter, Mrs. Philip Chase, Mrs. Henry M. Channing, Mrs. David M. Little and Mrs. J. Murray Forbes.

Await Her

SPEAKING OF MRS. FORBES reminds us that we have recently heard that her beautiful estate, Deerly, in Wellesley, will resume with the class and gurgles of an infant this summer for her son and daughter-in-law, the Alexander Cochrane family of New York will soon present her with a grandchild and will undoubtedly bring the new offspring here for a visit later on.

DOROTHY FORBES

former Irene Robbins, daughter of the American minister to Canada and Mrs. Warren D. Robbins. This junior branch of the family has to share family attention, however, with Alexander's sister, Miss Dorothy Forbes, who has announced June 29 as the date for her marriage to John Akin of Bedford Hills, New York.

Tennis and badminton will be the prime interest in the household of the Whitfield Painters of Dedham after the arrival of a new bride in the near future.

As Marguerite Morrill, Mrs. Painter, went to her career as one of the country's highest ranking tennis players and her husband is a prominent sportsman. The Painters are a jolly pair and are great favorites in the social set in which they play such an important part. They are shining lights in the affairs of the Badminton and Tennis Club, organization of which was largely completed through their efforts.

Off to Europe for Skiing

THIS IS A BUSY SEASON for that long legged stork for he is destined to make a stop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Stuart Forbes, Jr., in Chestnut Hill next month. The family circle is experiencing a period of pleasant anxiety wondering whether the new heir will be William Stuart 3d or Katherine Greely, after Mr. Forbes. At any rate, though having the same family name as the offspring of the Alexander Forbes, William, 3d, or Katherine will not be related to the New York baby.

With skis and snow suits carefully packed, Betty Peabody of Groton and Phyllis Byrne of New York have set sail for Europe where they will make a round of the famous skiing resorts of Central Europe.

Betty is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Endicott Peabody of the Groton School.

The Social Climber's Problems

THE SOCIAL CLIMBER and her devious routes to success are often a subject of dinner table or tea cup conversation and the new article on the subject which appears in the issue of Cosmopolitan magazine on the newstand today will furnish material to the arguments.

The article is an autobiographical sketch by a woman who has devoted her entire adult career to the acquisition of social position regardless of the cost to herself or to those who have crossed her path.

We should like to hear the discussions which result from reading this frank statement of the author's formula for climbing the social ladder. Her methods might meet with results in some very cosmopolitan cities but we doubt if the impregnable gates of aristocratic Bay State society could be crashed by an ambitious person who courted solely money, jewels, power and royalty.

Busy With Plans for Ball

MISS MARY FULLER, who is due to return from sunning herself in the South, is one of the auxiliary committee of the Five Star Final Ball which will attract a large social gathering to the Barby Club on Friday the 15th of March. The clever young minds who are planning the Ball are looking forward to an evening of fun and frolic to raise funds for the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation.

Other girls who have been enlisted to aid the general committee which is headed by Mrs. Howard Key Bartow, Jr., and Mrs. Robert Powell Jones, are Anne Green, Evelyn Hansman, Mary Hastings, Janet and Barbara Marston, Mary Morrison, Nancy Morrison, Grace Nelson, Virginia Tolman and Lansdale Watson.

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

MR. AND MRS. LEO CALLAHAN (Hearse Electric President), whose wedding took place in Ware, on February 2, were guests at the Hotel Lincoln, in New York, where they called on Mrs. Alexander. They, on their way to Aden, where Mr. Callahan is the United States consul.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT L. RAYMOND and Mrs. Arthur H. Wedd of Milton, are visiting New York and are staying at the Wayside Hotel.

MRS. FRANCIS A. HARDING, JR. and Mrs. Richard Thompson, snapped as they chatted at a recent social gathering of the

Legett Proves Modest Saver of Life

Sarasota, Fla., March 8. THINKING IT A MERE ROUTINE adventure, "Doc" Legett, Red Sox utility catcher, has made no whisper of the quick wit and cool courage by which he saved a Sarasota youth from gaily death last week.

Austen Lake

Tragic Marionette

SUDDENLY, A LITTLE DISTANCE from the road, Legett saw two men who were behaving strangely. One, an old man in dungarees, was running in frantic circles, yelping incoherently and windmilling his arms.

The other seemed to be leaning against a wire fence while dancing a grotesque jig, jerking his legs and fluttering his elbows like a many-jointed puppet.

Legett, sensing tragedy, whoa-ed down his motor, and he and Seede galloped through the palmetto bush as fast as their clumsy fishing boots would permit.

They saw, on the instant, that a live, unmaneuvered, feed-cable had fallen from its pole across a heavy wire fence, and was transmitting part of its lethal current to the innocent-looking strands.

It is curious that "Doc" hid the light of his heroism under a bushel and told nobody how he risked disabling burns to yank a yokel lad from a grounded high-tension wire where he was about to be electrocuted.

The story came from Bob Seede, former Red Sox infielder and winter resident here, who told me how he and Legett had been motoring down a rural lane on the outskirts of Sarasota.

They were steering for the wilderness and a certain little stream where bays and trout nibble tender water sprouts. The back of their bus was loaded with fishing tackle and camp gear.

ingly tried to climb over the fence and was caught, like a human fly, on the deadly, death-charged web.

There he hung, his face livid, his flesh scorching and his muscles quivering, a pitiable picture of agonized helplessness, while his hysterical father made futile, demented motions

Lightning Calculator

LEGETT DID NOT HESITATE. Schooled to split-second thinking on the ball field, he instantly stripped off his rubber hip-boots, known to fishermen as "waders."

With hasty caution he slipped the end of a boot between the boy's body and the sputtering fence-wire, careful lest his own flesh contact either the lad or the wire.

Then Doc took firm grip on one end of the boot, while Seede, quick to understand the plan, seized the other end. Together with one mighty heave they jerked the now unconscious youth clear of the killing current.

Lifting his limp, scorched body the two players trundled the boy to their car and his high spots for the Sarasota hospital, where the younger stiller still be swathed in medicated lin-van, hazyard, but alive and heaving.

He owes his life to the quick mental reflexes, daring and strength of men trained on Boston ball fields.

Yet, until today, hardly any of Legett's thirty-odd Red Sox teammates had heard of the incident.

Likely 1935 Batting Order

HERE IS A PRE-VIEW of the Red Sox batting order for the 1935 opening game with the Yankees, as Manager Joe Cronin penciled it down for me, as a probable, if premature, firing line.

1. Max Bishop, 2b; 2. Billy Werber, 3b; 3. Roy Johnson, 1f; 4. Cronin, ss; 5. Johnnie Sellen, cf; 6. Carl Reynolds or Dusty Cooke, rf; 7. Rick Farrell, cf; 8. Ellsworth Dahlgren, lb.

With typical confidence, Cronin has assigned himself to the clean-up spot, refusing to dodge the extra burden which he, as the sole arbiter, might reasonably have spared himself.

I believe, for many reasons, that Joe is going to make the most popular Red Sox manager, with Boston crowds, since Bill Carrigan's pre-war term.

"Now that Fenway is my home park," he said dolefully, "I suppose opposing pitchers will serve me a steady diet of outside pitching."

As a right-handed "pull" hitter, Cronin has scattered the whiskey signs in Fenway's left field with many a double

Rival pitchers are certain to force him to hit toward right field, where the park limits are remote and where a fielder can rove deeper.

Nursing Laboratory

CRONIN PLANS TO USE the approaching exhibition season which opens next Wednesday in Miami, as a laboratory to experiment with his freshman players.

This, as a policy, has its faults. The adult players, who are going to carry the standard in the summer campaign, should use these games to shake themselves together, lest they make a slow start in the league.

Times and ideas in exhibition game theory have changed since the Red Sox passed into Eddie Collins' dugout.

Where Bob Quinn frowned on training competition with major league teams, in the belief that the pressure tended to discourage his novice players, Collins favors a long, stern list of big league opponents, on the theory that this is the culture of opposition his team will have to meet later and it might as well grow accustomed to it early.

ALL REGULARS GET AS THEY LOSE, 2-0

By Joe Cashman

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 8.—The gang's all here at last, but you won't find Bill McKechnie doing any cheering today.

The presence of "Buck" Jordan and Hal Lee, welcome as it is, can't make the Tribal pit forget the weak hitting of his regulars in the first scrub game of the season.

Rookie pitchers using little more than a fast ball, limited Ubranski, Whervey, Moore, Mallon, Thompson, Mowry et al. to four scattered singles, three of which were infield errors, while the scrubs whewashed the variety, 2 to 0.

Wakinsburg will have devoted the greater part of every session to hitting drills, but to evident that the Braves need more before they can get up with the pitching.

With the aid of the race still more than a month away, he put naturally, not long ago, he never the change-over start, he never was there a little longer top firm for the opening exhibition game with the Cincinnati Reds in Tampa tomorrow.

LEE ARRIVES

"It will be a miracle if we're not whipped the next two afternoons by the Reds," he said this morning.

"If we're helpless against kids, pitchers who've been waiting and only five, we can't hope to do much hitting against the Cincinnati staff, which began practice at Hot Springs on Feb. 12."

"After Sunday, though, we won't play again until we battle the Yankees on Friday. By that time I think we'll be ready to hold our own."

The arrival of Hal Lee just before the scrub game on Saturday surprised him. He was in the jumping into uniform and insisted on playing in full time.

His play indicated he had more work to do in Louisville but he denied this.

Coach Gildea

Returns Trophy to School

Following a number of protests, Coach Francis Gildea, of the Everett high team, has returned a trophy won by the Everett high team from the Andover used in the high school trophy chest.

Members of the track team, in appreciation of the work of their popular coach, insisted that he accept the trophy as the gift of the team. His officials and others entered the picture, holding that trophy belongs to the school. Because of the discussions created, Coach Gildea today returned the trophy.

CUBS TRIP EAGLES SURE TO FINISH FIRST

BRUINS TO MEET LEAFS

By Walter Kiley
Just by way of proving convincingly the reason for their position at the top of the Can-Am heap, Bruin Cubs went out and knocked off their arch rivals, New Haven Eagles, 5-3, at the Arena.

That Quebec and Providence will open the playoffs for the right to meet the Cubs in the Pontiac cup finals. They would start the series on March 30. The second game on the 31st and, if necessary, on the 30th of April. The finals will start immediately afterwards.

The Bruins travel to Detroit for a Sunday game, and thereafter have only one more game away from home.

Capra to Direct

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Los Angeles, March 8.—There has never been more popular academy award than the one handed Frank Capra, Columbia's unassuming little director. Everyone loves Frank and everyone felt that the award was a just one, for to my knowledge, this boy has never made a bad picture.

Although he has made his greatest success in simple down-to-earth stories, Frank will try something a little more daring in "The Lost Horizon," a movie story of the Far East by James C. Mison. He will direct "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ, and "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ, and "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ.

A little Louella O. Parsons mentions that she has seen a picture of the life of Christ, and "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ, and "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ.

I believe I have seen the picture, but I have not seen the picture, but I have not seen the picture, but I have not seen the picture.

Charles Chaplin is still the man who can make a picture out of nothing, and "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ, and "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ.

At the moment of his play, "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ, and "The Sign of the Cross," a picture of the life of Christ.

My animal inheritance, as much as I could, was to be a life, and that was to be a cure.

That was Cure.

Two days of the ship's doctor came to my cabin to say to me scientifically.

That all my reason, and pretty much everything else had been cast overboard.

He told me that I was to be a cure, and that was to be a cure.

'Four-Legged Death'

His Youth's Kindness to Dogs Proves Bread Cast Upon the Waters.

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

You know, boys and girls, in fiction, there are no bad dogs in all the dog stories I've ever read, the dog is generally three times as good as any of the human characters in the yarn. But these adventure tales of ours are not fiction—they are fact. And so we have here a yarn, from Nathan Siegel, of 43 Avenue C, Rossmore, N. Y., in which there are both good and bad dogs. One of these dogs is the hero of the piece. Some other ponches are the villains. And as for Nate Siegel—well, I guess he's the goat.

Nate Siegel has always been fond of dogs. Ever since he was a little bit of a kid, he has had the habit of making friends with stray canines in the street—taking them home, if they were sick or hungry, to feed them, or take care of them, or give them a home until somebody turned up to claim them.

Nate's mother was a brick and a half. She was a dog-annexing habit. She had a posse many mothers would be proud to pose as. She was a dog-annexing habit. She had a posse many mothers would be proud to pose as. She was a dog-annexing habit. She had a posse many mothers would be proud to pose as.

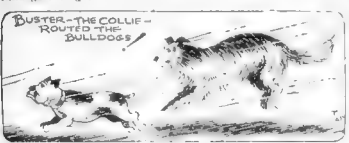

And there came a time, boys and girls, when she must have seen a mighty glad and encouraged her son. It was a dog-annexing habit. She had a posse many mothers would be proud to pose as. She was a dog-annexing habit. She had a posse many mothers would be proud to pose as.

Nate's home is located out at the edge of Rossmore, in a section which, back in 1928, was a dog-annexing habit. She had a posse many mothers would be proud to pose as. She was a dog-annexing habit. She had a posse many mothers would be proud to pose as.

One day, when Nate was about 11 years old, he found a stray collie in the street and brought it home. He was quite a big dog, known from head to foot, and playful as a pup. Nate had such a good time with him that Mrs. Siegel couldn't bear to put him out and so nobody came to claim him he just stayed on.

One afternoon, after the collie had been with him about a week, Nate had him out in the yard romping with him. After a while the collie jumped over a fence and disappeared in a grassy field in the back of a neighbor's yard. Nate waited for him to come back, but he didn't come. Finally, he gave up and started to go home.

On the way home he had to pass the house of the woman who raised the bulldogs. As he went by, he heard several dogs barking, but he thought nothing of that. It wasn't until the barking was almost upon him that he looked back and saw three vicious bulldogs racing toward him.

To anybody who knows dogs their intentions are unmistakable, and Nate could tell by their dripping jaws—their headlong nature of their gait—that they meant him no good. He was so terrified that his legs wouldn't move—he was so frightened that the scream he tried to let out froze in his throat. He just stood dead in his tracks, trembling all over and waiting for the moment when the vicious brutes would be upon him.

Snapping, snarling, the three came on. One of them leapt for Nate's throat and knocked him to the ground. The other two were on him. He felt a sharp pain in his leg, and another in his arm. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see.

Too late the power of the collie was back into Nate's mind. He began kicking and shouting, and the three brutes turned on him. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see.

Once more the dog-annexing habit was on him. Again he was back on his feet. Tears filled his eyes. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see.

Taken off guard, the three brutes fled and ran. They went streaking for home, with Buster after them. In a few minutes Buster was back again—back to where Nate sat dazed with fright and crying from pain of several scratches on his body.

When Nate came out of his daze Buster was licking his face. After a while he managed to get home, pretty much all in. The doctor came and cauterized the wounds on his hands, face and body, and it was quite a while before Nate could get around again. But he hates to think what might have happened if there hadn't been one good dog to take the measure of three bad ones.

Well, sir, I've had a yarn every day for you boys and girls for quite a while, and now how about you sending yours in to meet me? I'll be waiting for you. Tomorrow read "Hangman in the House."
